

Richard D. Adams Bio

Richard D. Adams is son to William and Marilyn Adams and a native of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, by way of Chicago, Illinois. He moved to Metro-Atlanta, Georgia in 1990, where he resides with Faye Adams, his wife of 17 years. He has 3 children.

He is a seasoned veteran in the financial services industry, which includes a high level of knowledge and expertise in real estate, insurance, benefits packaging, business and estate planning.

Richard is founder and owner of Next Genesis, LLC a company which provides one of the most thorough and unique financial services available. Their proprietary 100 Year - $100 Million Program is a one-of-a-kind approach, not available anywhere else.

In addition to providing what many consider to be the best possible financial solution for businesses and individuals, Next Genesis LLC, is one of the few experts on how the Affordable Care Act affects businesses. They can structure or restructure your Health and Ancillary benefits in the most cost effective manner, generally freezing your cost at 50% of what you are currently spending on benefits.

With the exception of Property and Casualty, Next Genesis, LLC can provide the highest level of services for all Insurance and Financial Service needs, regardless of the size of the business. We have a particular expertise with funds earmarked for the intermediate and long term Bond Market.

Richard has achieved the designation of Chartered Financial Consultant[®], which means he has completed the most extensive educational program required for any financial services credential.

Their core belief is embodied in their Mission Statement: “To do something substantial for you, while making life better for so many someones you will never meet, but whom you love deeply.”
